

Barriers

The Heinz and Mia Krone Foundation, which looks after disabled people, is organising the fourth edition of its photographic competition. The theme this year is "Barriers".

People with disabilities, most of them tied to a wheelchair, are confronted with problems every day that those able to walk do not have to think about, such as doors, stairs or car journeys. However, barriers not only determine the lives of disabled people. In fact, we all face in them in some form or another, whether it be in the outside world or our own mental world, and it is these obstacles that photographers are asked to visualise.

Only one picture may be submitted per participant (paper print, min. 9x13cm, black and. The pictures must be sent off by 30 November (postmark). white or colour, or digital). The best entrant will win a 16-day trip for two people on the safari train Shongololo Express through Namibia and the wine-growing country of South Africa
